Entering or Leaving Bingham, Wayfarers Face Death

missioners passed through what is com missioners passed through what is com-monly called "the death trap." This they did to a certainty because it is the hell-gate through which every vehicle bound for or coming from the greatest tonnage copper camp in the world must go. The 8000 people living in the main canyon. Carr fork and Markham gulch have the choice of facing death here or taking the train.

choice of facing death here or taking the train.

This trap is located a couple of miles below the city, at Copperton, where for a distance of thirty yards the county road runs between an embankment and the Rio Grande railroad track—the space between averaging not more than ten to twelve feet. Coming out of the canyon, in entering the place, the road passes at right angles under a trestle, so that the driver of a team cannot see what is ahead of him until too late to turn back. If a train is passing and lie is driving a spirited team, he can consider himself "strictly in it"—lucky if he gels out alive. An alfalfa peddler with a big jag—of hay—takes up every inch of the way, blocking this place, a pair of fractious horses unable to get by it or turn back, and an express train rushing by It is mirraculous that in the years past many drivers and horses have not been killed, and surely it is only a question of time when this will be the seene of a drendful accident and the county mulcited for criminal negligence.

On top of the embankment stands the

IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

Funeral services for Mrs. Genevieve Stratton Eakle, wife of Captain H. K. Eakle of Company D of the Utah National Guard, were held at St. Mary's cathedral at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Father D. Slattery officiated, and the organist. Miss Nora Gleason, played the funeral march. The pallbearers were members of Company D. Many floral offerings were sent to the cathedral, the most beautiful, perhaps, being a design of the American flag, which was sent by the members of Company D. The Interment was in City cometery.

Opportunity for Georgians.

Macon. Ga., is going to hold a home coming festival this fall and the committee in charge of the affair wants Utah to be represented. This committee wants the names of ten transplanted Georgians in Utah and to this end has written to Governor Spry, through its secretary, E. H. Hyman. If the governor will furnish the committee with the names of transplanted Georgians here the committee will send the Georgians a cordial invitation, handsomely got up, to the homecoming Governor Spry is casting about to learn the names of Georgians in Utah and will appreciate help in the matter.

James Anderson Buried.

Funeral services for James Anderson, the pioneer tailor who died at his home. 225 Tenth East street, early Saturday morning, were held in the Thirty-third ward chapel at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. A good crowd attended and some beautiful floral offerings were sent in. Interment was in the City cemetery.

Editor Tribune—On their late auto trip old West Mountain placer pamping station—a considerable building that in case the embankment was parity removed, would have to rest on plers of timber or iron. By exercation the roadway might be widened to twenty-five feet, and the piers used as substantial stays for a re-taining wall. But was the county comtaining wall. But was the county coa-missioners ever known to give Bingham a permanent improvement like this—one that the first freshet would not wash out? Not in the least. And no such work will ever be done while the big Bingham rake-off is needed for pavements and fishponds down in the valley. Chairman Muckay has got his, but there are others and others.
